MLA Web Citations
Prepared by Daytona State Library Services (www.daytonastate.edu/library) and The College Writing Center (http://www.daytonastate.edu/cwc)
For more information, call the Research Assistance Desk at 386.506.3518 or the College Writing Center at 386.506.3297

When you read something and then use the ideas from it in your paper, you must give information to your readers to help them find your source, in case they also want to read it, in the form of a citation.
The following are some examples of typical “Works Cited” citations for Web resources using Modern Language Association (MLA) style. All citations should be DOUBLE SPACED, with every line after the first indented ½ inch. For explanations of the format or more examples check with your instructor or the Web Sources - To cite a source from the internet or other online source, include as much information as available so that a reader can track down the page or article. Recent changes to the MLA Handbook have made citing web and non-web sources easier by making the format more similar. In most cases, you can cite things like E-books, newspaper articles, and magazine articles you find on the internet like you would cite their printed counterparts with the exception of adding the date of publication or last update of page, the publication medium (usually Web), and the date when you accessed the source.

If you cannot locate a piece of information, skip it and move on to the next one. Web addresses (URLs) are no longer required, but your instructor might ask for them anyway.

---

Article or page within a website – this is the basic structure for all web sources. If you need to cite something not on this list, follow this pattern as best as you can. Use N.p. if there is no sponsor and n.d. if there is no update or copyright date.

Author(s). “Article/Page/Item Title.” Site Name. Publisher or Sponsor of Site, Date of last update or copyright. Web. Date of access.

19 June 2009.

---

Pictures, sounds, and videos from a website – this is the same as citing these mediums in non-web forms, except that you should add the title of the website or database in which you found it, change the medium to “Web,” and add you date of access of the ene.

Online video

Creator(s)/Author(s)/Poster(s). Title. Important Director(s)/Writer(s)/Performer(s). Studio or Production Company, Day Month Year. Site Name. Web. Date of access.

YouTube. Web. 8 Dec. 2010
Picture from the web

Author(s). Title. Date of Composition. Medium. Institution of location, City. Site Name. Date of Access

Articles and E-books from databases — this is the same as citing a print articles and books except that you should change the medium to “Web” and include the database’s title and the date you accessed the article. Use “n. pag.” for page numbers if there are no page numbers given.

Journal article from library database

Author(s). “Article Title.” Journal Title Volume # (Year): Page numbers. Name of Database. Web. Date of access.

Magazine from library database

Author(s). “Article Title.” Magazine Title. Day Month Year: Page numbers. Name of Database. Web. Date of access.

Newspaper article from subscription database

Author(s). “Article Title.” Newspaper Title Day Month Year, edition. Name of Database. Web. Date of access.

E-book accessed through the library

Author(s). Title of Book. City of Publication: Publisher, Year of Publication. Name of Database. E-book. Date of access.